Editor's Note

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the latest edition of the JTribe Monthly Buzz.

We are truly overwhelmed by the tremendous positive response and appreciation we received from all of you during Ace Cup 2026. The larger purpose behind building the Jhamtani brand has always been centered around customer happiness, and it was heartwarming to witness your smiles and satisfaction throughout the event.

A special thank you goes out to the Superstars of JTribe – our children, who performed at the Gala Dinner with incredible enthusiasm and energy. Moments like these strengthen our community bond and allow us to reaffirm our commitment of “Hamesha Aapke Saath” to all our clients.

In this edition, we have captured some memorable highlights from Ace Cup 2026 and the Gala Dinner celebrations.

We would also like to extend our gratitude to the members of JTribe who have supported us by referring their friends and relatives to become a part of our community. Your trust and support continue to help us grow stronger.

As we approach the final month of the financial year, there is a sense of focus and determination across our teams. We remain committed to achieving the goals we have set for ourselves with courage, resilience, and dedication.

At Jhamtani, our core values remain at the heart of everything we do. Upholding our commitments has always been a defining part of our culture and continues to guide us on this journey.

We are grateful for the love, trust, and support we have received from our JTribe, and we look forward to continuing this journey together.

Regards,

Meenakshi Jhamtani

The Jhamtani Premiere League 2026: More Than Just a Game

A Celebration of Community, Spirit, and the Jhamtani Family

At Jhamtani, our relationship with our clients doesn't end at registration—it begins there. Our annual cricket tournament brings together the ever-growing Jhamtani family in a celebration of community and sportsmanship. What started as a small neighborhood match has now grown into a large sporting festival, reflecting the trust and growth our brand has achieved over the years.

The Magic of Day-Night Cricket

This year's tournament featured exciting day-night matches across two action-packed weekends. Under the floodlights, with families cheering from the sidelines, the atmosphere felt like a stadium experience right in the heart of our community.

A New Era: The Women's Championship

One of the proudest highlights was the debut of our Women's Teams. Their spirited and competitive matches reflected the inclusive culture we believe in, making this category a permanent part of the tournament.

The Jhamtani Talent Spotlight

Alongside the cricket action, children showcased their creativity at the Community Talent Show. From soulful singing to energetic dance performances, young talents from different societies came together, truly representing the spirit of JTribe.

The Grand Finale Celebration

The event concluded with felicitations and a grand Gala Dinner, honoring winners, standout performers, and participants. Residents from different projects came together to celebrate, share stories, and strengthen the bond that makes the Jhamtani community special.

Looking Ahead: The Legacy Continues

As we look back on the cheers, the catches, and the standing ovations, we are reminded of why we do this. Jhamtani doesn't just build structures of brick and mortar; we build the stage upon which your life's best memories are performed.

With more projects currently under construction and nearing delivery, next year's tournament promises to be even bigger. We are already looking at ways to expand the format and include even more sporting categories.

To every participant, every cheering parent, and every winner: Thank you for making the Ace Cup 2026 our most successful event, See you on the pitch next year!

Voices of the Community: Ace Cup Stories

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Mr. Anup Jhamtani Sir for the outstanding arrangements made for the Gala Event. The event was truly amazing and very well organized.

I have rarely seen a builder who continues to care for residents even after the flat possession and society handover. Organizing such wonderful events, cricket tournaments, and community programs shows great commitment towards building a strong and happy community.

I would also like to highlight the Talent Show stage performance opportunity.

I feel very lucky and honored that I got the chance to present my singing talent in front of thousands of people. It was truly a memorable experience for me.

I am very thankful to Mr. Anup Sir and the CRM team for giving residents such a great platform.

A special thanks to Mrs. Rashmi Madam for taking the initiative and encouraging my stage performance.

Once again, thank you for such a wonderful and memorable event.

I am writing to express my sincere appreciation for the recently concluded Ace Cup cricket tournament and the Gala dinner. From the initial planning stages to the final execution, the entire event was impeccably organized and managed.

It was a true pleasure to participate in an initiative that provided such a fantastic platform for our community to connect. A special mention to the organizing committee for the Gala night—the evening was delightful, and the dinner was truly exceptional.

Thank you for your hard work and dedication in bringing the community together.

I look forward to participating in more of such well-curated events in the future.

Best regards,

We Won! Team Aastha Champions Takes Home the Ace Cup

The stumps are back in the bag and the cheers have faded, but for us at Team Aastha Champions, the excitement is still here! After weeks of playing our hearts out, we are officially the winners of this year's Ace Cup.

The Hard-Fought Matches

It wasn't an easy win. Our Semifinal against the Impression Challengers was a total nail-biter. They gave us a real "tough fight" and pushed us to our limits. It was all about staying calm under pressure and never giving up.

Then came the Big Final against the Aura Tigers. They played incredibly well and fought right until the very last ball. Winning against such a strong team made the victory feel even more special for all of us.

A Huge Thank You

We couldn't have done this alone. A big shout-out to:

The Management: For giving us this chance to come together and compete outside the office.

The Crew Members: For working so hard behind the scenes to make sure every match ran smoothly.

Our Fellow Players: For keeping the game fair, professional, and fun. It was our cleanest and most competitive tournament yet.

To everyone on Team Aastha Champions: Enjoy the glory—we earned it!

The Ace Cup 2026 was truly a wonderful event. The highlight this year was the addition of women's cricket teams, which brought fresh energy and inclusivity to the tournament. It was inspiring to see the women's team enjoying the matches and realizing the importance of practicing harder to aim for the title next year. Although the men's matches faced slight delays, the open-ground experience made up for it, and the overall atmosphere was cheerful and well-organized.

The Gala Dinner was equally fantastic, serving as a delightful get-together for all our families.

The kids had a great time with the engaging activities planned, and I sincerely appreciate the opportunity given to them to showcase their talents. My daughter, Jeevika, was thrilled to perform her dance on stage, which was a proud moment for us.

Overall, both the Ace Cup 2026 and the Gala Dinner were beautifully organized, filled with joy, togetherness, and memorable experiences. Kudos to the Jhamtani team for creating such lovable events that bring our community closer every year.

Making of a Brand Story

Brands are like human beings – living, eating, breathing with emotions. Every brand has a personality which is an outcome of the brand's purpose, its value systems, the expressions and visuals used to depict the brand.

The purpose of a brand's existence is cleared by asking 'why', which ultimately influences 'how' and 'what'.

People don't buy because of 'what' you make; people buy because of 'why' you do it the way you do. Purpose moves ideas and businesses forward.

Brand Purpose

Purpose Pre-Work

- Why did you start your business?
- What is your unique strength and What problem are you trying to solve in your customer's life?
- How will you do that?

"Ikigai" means "purpose" – a reason for being. And every brand has a context to this concept.

The importance of Ikigai can be very well explained by this diagram:

Some brand examples and their context to “Purpose”

- Swiggy – They love to save people from hunger.
- Apple – They are paid for being the best.
- Cisco – They are good at connecting all kinds of dots.

Purpose is the ‘Why’ of any organisation.

Vision is the ‘destination’ ‘where’ any business is headed.

Mission is the ‘path’ an organisation follows to achieve its goal.

The Brand Story

What makes the brand impactful is how you depict the story of the brand. The best of the brands tell stories, not messages. Stories that create cultural relevance and emotional connection. Some important aspects to building a brand story are –

- Visual is greater than verbal.
Actions > Greater than words
- Are you just telling your story or are you living it?
- The best story of your brand cannot be told by you, it can only be told by your customers.
- Listening is more powerful than telling.
- A story needs ‘Emotional connect’.
- Making the audience a part of your brand story.
- Stories require character, conflict and resolution.
- Stories need contrast. eg. switching from sympathy to empathy.
- You don’t have to say that which is obvious.

Ultimately, a brand story is not about what you sell, but who you are and why you exist.

In a world deeply saturated with fleeting digital noise, a deeply resonant narrative acts as a lighthouse, guiding the right people to your shore. When we master the art of impactful storytelling, we stop being a line item on a budget and start being a meaningful part of our customer’s identity.

‘Products can be replaced; but stories are remembered’.

The world is not looking for another brand, it is looking for a story to believe in.

Mrs. Meenakshi Jhamtani
Executive Director

Unity is Strength

Unity is one of the most powerful values that helps individuals, communities, and nations grow stronger together. The saying “Unity is Strength” means that when people work together with a common purpose, they can overcome challenges that may seem impossible to face alone.

In every organization or community, people come from different backgrounds, experiences, and ideas. These differences should not divide us; instead, they should help us build stronger teamwork. When individuals support each other, share responsibilities, and respect one another’s opinions, they create an environment where everyone can succeed.

History has shown many examples where unity has brought positive change. Whether it is a group of employees working together to achieve business goals, a community helping each other during difficult times, or a nation standing together for a common cause—unity always leads to greater strength and success.

In the workplace, unity promotes collaboration, trust, and mutual respect. When team members communicate openly and help each other, productivity increases and problems are solved more efficiently. A united team is more motivated, confident, and capable of achieving remarkable results.

Let us remember that unity does not mean everyone must think the same way. Instead, it means valuing our differences while working toward a shared goal. By supporting each other and standing together, we can build a stronger, more positive, and more successful future.

As the famous proverb says: “Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much.”

Let us continue to work together with unity, respect, and cooperation—because truly, Unity is Strength.

Leadership

Conducting a Thoughtful Tuesday session at my workplace recently was a truly enriching experience. The 45-minute interaction turned into a meaningful exchange of ideas, perspectives, and learning with my colleagues. What made the session special was the openness in the room – everyone participated not just as professionals, but as individuals eager to grow together.

The discussion focused on leadership lessons inspired by Indian cricket and how those principles translate into corporate life. We explored how staying calm under pressure, trusting team members, adapting to changing situations, and leading by example are qualities that define both successful captains and effective corporate leaders. The session reminded us that leadership is less about authority and more about responsibility and mindset.

More than a presentation, the session became a shared learning experience that strengthened collaboration and reflection within the team. Interacting closely with colleagues reinforced the importance of continuous learning cultures at the workplace. Experiences like these reaffirm that growth happens when conversations inspire action and when teams learn together.

The Power of Thought: Reflections from a Thoughtful Tuesday Session

This Thoughtful Tuesday, I had the opportunity to conduct a session on Mindful Thinking and the Law of Attraction. Most of us operate on autopilot, reacting to situations, worrying about outcomes, or replaying past events in our minds. Mindful thinking is about becoming aware of these thoughts and consciously choosing the ones that empower us rather than limit us.

During the session, we discussed how the Law of Attraction is often misunderstood as just “wish and it will happen.” In reality, it works when thoughts, emotions, and actions align. To make it practical, I shared everyday examples people could instantly relate to:

- When we constantly think “This meeting will go badly”, we walk in with hesitation and the outcome often reflects that energy.
- When someone preparing for a presentation visualizes success, confidence naturally follows.
- Even small shifts like replacing “I can’t handle this” with “Let me try and see what I learn” can change our response to challenges.

One of the most engaging moments (or so I think) was when I played a famous dialogue by Shah Rukh Khan from Om Shanti Om, to concise the whole point of this presentation in 10 seconds!

"Agar kisi cheez ko dil se chaho, toh poori kainaat use tumse milane ki koshish mein lag jaati hai."

While often heard in a cinematic context, the line beautifully captures the essence of intention, belief, and persistence, core ideas behind the Law of Attraction.

The session wasn't about forcing positivity or ignoring challenges. Instead, it was about observing our thoughts, choosing better ones, and acting from a place of awareness. What stayed with me most was how quickly the conversation shifted from theory to real-life reflection. It reminded me that sometimes people don't need complicated frameworks, they just need a moment to pause and rethink how powerful their own mindset can be.

The Ideal Way of Living - Bringing Ramrajya home!

Connecting the modern quest for an "ideal way of living" to the concept of Ramrajya (the reign of Lord Rama in Ayodhya) offers a profound blueprint for holistic well-being. It's not just a historical or mythological reference; it is a timeless framework for a balanced society.

Ramrajya - Beyond Governance

In the context of Ayodhya, Ramrajya represents the pinnacle of social, moral, and physical harmony. The Ramayana describes it as a time where "Adhibhautika" (physical), "Adhidaivika" (spiritual), and "Adhyatmika" (mental) sufferings were non-existent.

A life where personal ambition and social duty (Dharma) are in perfect alignment.

Core Pillars of Ideal Living

A. Dharma (Duty and Ethics)

In Ayodhya, every individual—from the King to the citizen—lived by their Dharma.

Modern Correlation: An ideal life today isn't just about "hustle culture"; it's about integrity. It's doing your job, treating your family, and interacting with your community with a sense of moral responsibility.

B. Artha and Kama (Prosperity with Purpose)

Ayodhya was described as immensely wealthy, but that wealth was used for the common good.

Modern Correlation: We often chase wealth (Artha) and desires (Kama) at the expense of others. Ramrajya teaches us that prosperity is "ideal" only when it is shared and earned through fair means.

C. Health and Environment

The texts describe Ayodhya as a city with lush gardens, clean water, and citizens who lived long, disease-free lives.

Modern Correlation: The ideal way of living involves environmental stewardship and a lifestyle synced with nature (Ayurvedic principles), mirroring the purity of the Sarayu river and the groves of ancient Ayodhya.

D. Justice and Equality

Ramrajya is famous for the idea that even the lowliest voice was heard.

Modern Correlation: A truly ideal life cannot exist in a vacuum of privilege. It requires an empathetic connection to society, ensuring that our "perfect life" doesn't come at the cost of someone else's suffering.

Bringing Ayodhya Home

The "Ideal Way of Living" isn't about recreating a city of gold; it's about recreating the state of mind found in Ayodhya. It suggests that when we prioritize character over capital and community over the individual, we start living our own version of Ramrajya.

"Ramrajya is not a distant dream of the past, but a conscious choice of the present."

With this thought in mind, we have been working on a masterpiece project soon to be launched in the heart of PCMC. We can't wait to unveil it to you all!!

What Is BIM?

An intelligent software modeling process that architects, engineers, and contractors can use to collaborate on a building's design, construction, and operation.

BIM, acronym for Building Information Modeling is a process to generate and manage digital model replicas of spaces and its constituents with their physical and functional properties. BIMs (Building Information Models) can be generated, interchanged, extracted, and networked to support the whole design process concerning the AEC.

The major component of the BIM (Building Information Modeling) process is BIM software such as Revit, ArchiCAD, Navisworks, etc. These software ensures that building design is modelled in real-time with an assessment of critical parameters.

How does BIM work?

One of the biggest misconceptions in the BIM usage is people associating BIM with a few set of software only. Revit and ArchiCAD is not BIM, rather they are tools to implement BIM (Building Information Modeling).

The fundamental difference in BIM working in comparison to CAD is providing models with more functional information. The functional information is conveyed through LOD (Level Of Development) and BIM dimensions.

BIM LOD (Level Of Development) is all about how detailed a model can go in the BIM process. The LOD numbering is usually used for establishing an understanding the client requirements and expectations from outsourced BIM vendors. Similarly, the concept of dimensioning is adding critical functional metrics to your model. Each dimension added represent the parameter on which BIM (Building Information Model) is being modeled.

Why is BIM important?

Building Information Modeling (BIM) is important for several reasons:

1. Collaboration and Communication: BIM allows all stakeholders involved in a construction project to collaborate and communicate more effectively, which can reduce errors and improve efficiency. By sharing information in a common digital format, architects, engineers, contractors, and owners can work together more seamlessly throughout the entire construction process.

2. Better Design: With BIM, architects and engineers can create detailed 3D models that allow them to see how different components of a building will work together. This can help identify potential design conflicts early in the process, reducing the need for costly changes during construction.

3. Improved Cost Estimation: BIM models can be used to generate accurate cost estimates for construction projects, helping owners and contractors to better manage project budgets and avoid cost overruns.

4. Sustainability: BIM can be used to optimize the energy performance of buildings and to reduce their environmental impact. For example, BIM models can be used to simulate the performance of building systems under different conditions, helping to identify the most energy-efficient solutions.

5. Maintenance and Operations: BIM models can also be used to manage the ongoing maintenance and operations of buildings. By including detailed information about building components and systems, BIM models can help facility managers to identify potential maintenance issues before they become problems and to schedule maintenance more efficiently.

Overall, BIM helps to streamline the construction process, reduce errors and costs, and improve the overall quality of construction projects. BIM is becoming increasingly important in the construction industry, and many owners, contractors, and designers now require the use of BIM in their projects.

Throughout every stage of a construction project, from planning and design to construction and operation, building information modeling is used. BIM provides value to the project for all parties involved at each point along the road.

4 Stages of the BIM Implementation Process

Every stage of a construction project benefits from using building information modeling, know more about the 4 Stages of BIM Process to get better understanding.

How BIM will influence the future of Construction?

The building will become even more digital and collaborative in the future. 4D Planning & Scheduling, 5D BIM Cost Estimation, and even 6D BIM will start to participate in the process as the buildings become more complex. Additionally, efforts are being made to cut down on waste in the building industry globally.

Conclusion

Without BIM, it would not have been able to construct the extraordinary buildings that we see around us today. The technique has encouraged innovation in the construction industry, resulting in high-quality, low-cost buildings with amazing designs.

From Land to Launch: The Unseen Challenges of Real Estate Development

In real estate, the market experiences a project at launch. What often goes unnoticed is the long and uncertain journey that precedes it—from land acquisition to regulatory readiness.

While developers plan with defined milestones and clear intent, the approvals ecosystem rarely follows predictable timelines. A single policy change can disrupt months of preparation. The recent Government Resolution impacting Mojni conducted after 28th February, followed by the rollout of Mojni Version 2.0 without clearly defined SOPs, is a reminder of how quickly ground realities can shift. Even after nearly a year, the resulting ambiguity continues to affect project schedules.

At the same time, the business cannot pause. Projects must launch at the right time—and often quickly—to sustain the cash flow cycle. Working capital, construction momentum, and organizational stability depend on timely launches. Delays are not merely technical; they carry direct financial consequences.

There is also internal pressure. Sales teams are market-ready, trained, and eager to engage, yet they remain on standby until regulatory clarity is achieved. This gap between readiness and permission creates operational strain—where intent, capability, and execution are misaligned due to factors beyond internal control.

Despite these challenges, developers must continue to make forward-looking decisions: assessing market demand, finalizing product mix, controlling costs, and safeguarding profitability (PAT and PBT). Holding costs rise, assumptions evolve, and feasibility must be revisited—often more than once.

Real estate development is a collective effort. Architects, lawyers, environmental consultants, and technical advisors form an interdependent ecosystem. Regulatory uncertainty impacts every link in this chain, making coordination and adaptability critical leadership skills.

Ultimately, the true challenge from land to launch is not speed—it is resilience and balance. Balancing urgency with compliance, ambition with caution, and planning with unpredictability.

A project launch is not the start of the journey. It is the outcome of persistence, recalibration, and leadership in the face of uncertainty.

Quiet Confidence: Holi-Inspired Design Shaping Residential & Hospitality Spaces in 2026

The broader shift in architecture and interior design reflects changing user expectations. Today's residents and guests seek more than visual appeal—they look for spaces that feel intuitive, emotionally comforting, and aligned with a coherent identity. In Spring 2026, inspiration drawn from Holi is influencing interiors, not through spectacle, but through subtle renewal and disciplined expression.

Holi symbolizes joy, colour, and collective celebration. Yet within contemporary architecture, its translation is refined. Instead of replicating exuberant splashes of pigment, designers reinterpret the festival's spirit into layered palettes that enhance functionality, comfort, and brand coherence.

At the foundation of this approach are warm architectural neutrals—ivory, sand, beige, muted taupe. These tones create calm envelopes within residential apartments and hospitality lobbies alike. They expand perceived space, reflect natural light gracefully, and offer timelessness. Against this backdrop, softened Holi-inspired hues—dusty blush, lilac mist, sage green, butter yellow—introduce gentle vibrancy without overwhelming spatial clarity.

Functionality remains central. Colour is increasingly used as a zoning tool. In residential layouts, warmer undertones in living areas encourage connection, while cooler, muted pastels in bedrooms promote restoration. Subtle tonal shifts define dining niches, work corners, or lounge spaces without physical partitions. In hospitality environments, restrained accent colours can guide guests intuitively toward reception areas, waiting lounges, or circulation paths.

Comfort, too, is multi-layered. It is shaped by proportion, daylight, ventilation, and tactile materials. Holi-inspired palettes support this by adding emotional warmth. A muted coral cushion, a sage-upholstered chair, or a gradient artwork reminiscent of dispersing colour powder can create delight without visual noise. When combined with textured finishes—linen, natural wood, matte plaster—the space feels grounded and restorative.

Equally important is brand coherence. In premium residential developments and boutique hospitality projects, consistency strengthens identity. A disciplined palette ensures that lobbies, corridors, amenities, and private spaces speak the same visual language. Holi’s vibrancy appears not as excess, but as carefully curated highlights—perhaps in artwork, soft furnishings, or subtle feature walls. The message remains clear: expressive, yet controlled.

Lighting enhances this narrative. Morning daylight softens pastel undertones, while warm evening lighting deepens blushes and corals into cocooning hues. Architecture and colour work in dialogue, responding to orientation and time of day. The result is an environment that evolves gently, mirroring the dynamic yet harmonious spirit of the festival itself.

Ultimately, the Holi influence in 2026 interiors is about optimism anchored in discipline. It reflects a desire for spaces that uplift without overwhelming, that celebrate without losing composure. Residents and guests value environments that feel effortless—where every hue supports purpose, and every accent contributes to comfort.

In this mature design language, quiet confidence becomes the most powerful shade of all.

New Learning with New Project

I would like to share my experience as we recently started the registrations for our new premium project, Ace Abundance XO Signature Series. This project caters to HNI clients, with ticket sizes starting from approximately ₹1.95 crore and, making it a unique and valuable learning opportunity.

Being part of this process has helped me understand the importance of clear communication, professionalism, and attention to detail while interacting with premium clients. Each client interaction requires a personalized approach and careful coordination to ensure a smooth registration experience.

Through this journey, I have learned how to deal with different types of clients, manage documentation more efficiently, and coordinate better with internal teams. It has been both a challenging and rewarding experience that has helped me grow professionally.

I look forward to continuing this journey, learning new things, and contributing towards delivering a seamless experience for our clients.
