Editor's Note

Dear Readers,

As we approach the end of a phenomenal year, 2025, and the beginning of 2026, our excitement is boundless. At Jhamtani, 2025 brought many wonderful moments—from three successful launches to achieving the highest-ever records in sales and construction.

Every day has been a new learning experience for us this year. From re-strategising our approach to realigning our methods of working, this year has been an eye-opener for all of us. We saw ourselves planning and designing the biggest projects we have done to date; we stretched ourselves out of our comfort zones to achieve what we have dreamt of for all these years. Though times were challenging, what kept us strong was our 'PROMISE'.

A promise to build a trustworthy brand. A promise to go the extra mile for our customers and stakeholders. A promise to deliver products of the highest quality. We believe that promises aren't made in speeches; they are kept through actions. To keep a promise is to do what it takes, no matter what.

Today, we stand tall as we enter the fourth decade of our legacy, with over 29+ projects touching the lives of 11,000+ happy faces whom we call our JTribe. We remain strong in our minds with one promise: creating spaces where people connect, belong, and grow together. With every project we deliver, our brand promise of 'Hamesha Aapke Saath' grows stronger, as we aim to provide a hassle-free transition to a new abode.

In this edition of The Monthly Buzz, you will read stories from some of our customers and business associates, capturing their perspectives and experiences of collaborating with us. We are grateful to have built a legacy which people are proud to call their own.

We hope the new year is filled with new promises for us all, and we pray for everyone to have the strength and determination to fulfill these promises because...

CORE HIGHLIGHTS

The Name Is a Promise

At Jhamtani, every structure we build carries more than concrete and steel - it carries a commitment. A commitment to people, to places, and to progress. Our latest brand philosophy, "Jhamtani – The Name Is a Promise," is a powerful articulation of this belief - one that reflects who we are, what we stand for, and how we continue to shape communities across markets.

A Promise Rooted in Purpose

The campaign draws its strength from simple yet profound truths.

We create happy communities. We lead the change. We elevate locations.

These messages, brought alive through strong human visuals symbolising trust, support, and partnership, represent the essence of the Jhamtani journey. The clasped hands are not just a design element—they are a metaphor for the bond we share with our customers, partners, and the city we operate in.

With 29+ projects delivered, 11K+ happy faces, and a footprint spanning 12 key locations, Jhamtani's promise is not aspirational - it is proven.

From OOH to Digital: A Unified Brand Voice. The philosophy has been rolled out as a 360-degree brand presence, ensuring strong visibility and recall across touchpoints:

OOH Media: High-impact outdoor displays positioned across strategic city locations have helped the message reach a wide and diverse audience, reinforcing trust and brand stature.

Digital Platforms: The campaign seamlessly transitioned into the digital ecosystem—across social media, digital ads, and brand communication - ensuring consistent storytelling and engagement.

On-Ground Presence: Every ongoing Jhamtani project reflects this philosophy through site branding, collaterals, and customer touchpoints.

Head Office Integration: The Head Office too echoes this message—making the philosophy a lived experience for employees and stakeholders alike.

This integrated approach ensures that whether one encounters Jhamtani on the road, online, at a site, or within our workplace, the message remains clear and unified: the name is a promise.

A Philosophy That Will Shape the Year Ahead

“Jhamtani – The Name Is a Promise” is not a one-time campaign - it is a year-long brand philosophy that will guide all communication moving forward. From project launches and customer interactions to internal culture and brand storytelling, this promise will be consistently reinforced across every initiative.

Each quarter, each milestone, and each message will be built on this foundation—strengthening trust, enhancing credibility, and deepening emotional connection with our audiences.

More Than Buildings. A Lasting Impact.

At its core, Jhamtani’s promise is about responsibility—towards communities, locations, and future generations. By elevating spaces and leading positive change, we don’t just develop real estate - we create environments where life thrives.

Because at Jhamtani, a name is never just a name. It is a promise - kept, every day.

CORE HIGHLIGHTS

Setting New Benchmarks in Human-Centric Development

In 2026, Pune's real estate skyline continues to witness the steady ascent of Jhamtani - a name now synonymous with uncompromising standards of safety, quality, and precision. This commitment was recently recognised at the prestigious CREDAI Pune Pride Best Facility Awards 2025, where the group's landmark commercial project, Jhamtani Spacebiz, secured the Silver Award in Category 1 for its exemplary labour camp facilities.

A Recognition of Human-Centric Excellence

Held in December 2025 at Hotel Hyatt, Pune, the Pride Best Facility Awards honoured developers who went beyond basic compliance to provide dignified, safe, and well-managed living conditions for their workforce. For Jhamtani Spacebiz, this Silver Award is more than a trophy—it is a validation of the “JTribes” philosophy, which believes that every life matters and that true excellence on-site begins with the well-being of those who build it.

The award specifically recognised the project's high standards in hygiene, safety, and social security for its on-site labour force, setting a strong benchmark for responsible development in the Baner-Pashan region.

The Jhamtani Promise: Safety, Quality, and Time

With a legacy spanning over 4 decades, Jhamtani name has become a gold standard in the construction industry. The group's success rests on three unwavering pillars:

Unmatched Safety: Beyond the 2025 Pride Award, Jhamtani projects such as Ace Atmosphere have also been recognised for site safety, reinforced through rigorous staff training and regular third-party inspections.

Precision in Quality: By leveraging modern construction technologies and ISO-certified processes, Jhamtani ensures that every structure—from luxury residences to advanced commercial hubs—is built to last.

Timely Delivery: A defining hallmark of the brand, Jhamtani takes pride in its “Hamesha Aapke Saath” promise, consistently honouring its commitment to possession timelines.

Sustainability Focus: Targeted IGBC Gold Rating, green building practices, and a DCU unitised glazing system.

Strategic Connectivity: Prime location just 0.55 km from the nearest metro station, directly connected to the 30-metre-wide Baner Road.

As Jhamtani moves ahead in 2026, recognitions like the CREDAI Pune Pride Award reaffirm what the brand has always stood for. Because at Jhamtani, commitment isn't limited to structures or timelines - it extends to people, processes, and responsibility on site. In that sense, the name Jhamtani is not just an identity; it is a promise - one that is built, upheld, and delivered every day.

The Quiet Power of Commitment

When Yugandhara asked me to pick a topic for my first talk at the company, I spent more time deciding what not to speak about than what to speak about. Being just a couple of weeks old here, the last thing I wanted was to sound prescriptive, authoritative, or like someone delivering a “management lesson.” I wanted the conversation to feel familiar, honest, and human.

That is how I landed on the topic of commitment.

Not because it is a fashionable word or makes me sound better, but because it is a very lived one. Commitment shows up everywhere—in small personal promises we make to ourselves, in casual “haan ho jayega” moments, and in professional timelines that quietly shape trust, expectations, and outcomes. Most of us have often been through this and we have at times broken commitments, renegotiated them with ourselves, underestimated timelines, and learned—sometimes the hard way—how much weight a simple promise can carry.

The idea was not to define commitment, but to look at it with a bit of humour and self-awareness. Bollywood helped, of course. It has taught us how optimism, confidence, and the “all is well” thinking can make life lighter—but also how reality eventually catches up. That contrast felt relatable, especially in a workplace where intent is rarely the issue; accuracy usually is.

The experience of presenting the talk was both energising and reassuring. What stood out most was how many people nodded and smiled in acknowledgement. That response confirmed something important for me: commitment is not about pressure or perfection. It is about respect—for time, for people, and for shared outcomes.

For a first presentation, it felt like the right conversation to start with. Not as a statement, but as an invitation—to pause, reflect, and maybe think twice before saying, “kal ho jayega.”

Funfit Friday: Where Fitness Meets Fun

Funfit Friday came alive with an energetic Zumba session that turned our workplace into a hub of music, movement, and motivation. The upbeat rhythms instantly lifted everyone's spirits, setting the tone for a refreshing and joyful workout. From lively dance steps to high-energy routines, the session encouraged participants to move freely and enjoy every moment.

Zumba proved to be a perfect stress-buster after a busy workweek. The easy-to-follow choreography allowed our JTribe to participate, regardless of fitness level. As the music played, colleagues danced together, laughed freely, and stayed active without the pressure of a traditional workout.

Beyond physical fitness, the session strengthened connections among team members. The shared experience promoted positivity, teamwork, and a healthy break from daily routines. Smiles and cheers filled the room, making the activity both memorable and motivating.

Funfit Friday reminded us that staying fit can be exciting and enjoyable. It was a wonderful way to recharge, reconnect, and end the week on a high note.

Building Green Through Precision & Partnership

A Liaisoning Architect's Journey Through Four Consecutive IGBC Gold Pre-Certifications

In real estate development, sustainability is not achieved by design intent alone - it is delivered through coordination, compliance, and consistent follow-through. As a liaisoning architect, I have experienced how green goals translate into measurable outcomes only when planning, consultants, statutory processes, and execution teams work in alignment. Our journey of achieving four consecutive IGBC Gold Pre-Certifications reflects exactly that.

IGBC: Setting the Benchmark for Green Development

The Indian Green Building Council (IGBC), an initiative of the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII), provides a structured framework for designing and developing environmentally responsible buildings. IGBC rating systems promote efficient resource planning, enhanced indoor environmental quality, responsible material selection, and long-term sustainability. For a liaisoning architect, IGBC acts as a bridge—connecting sustainability intent with statutory approvals and on-ground implementation.

From Intent to Achievement: Four Gold Milestones

Our green journey progressed steadily - from Ace Abode and Ace Atmosphere, to Jhamtani Bizcore, and most recently, the IGBC Gold Pre-Certification of Ace Aster in January. With this, we proudly marked our fourth consecutive IGBC Gold Pre-Certification.

Each certification required careful alignment of architectural drawings, MEP layouts, sustainability strategies, and statutory submissions with IGBC benchmarks. Multiple reviews, clarifications, and timely responses were managed through continuous coordination, ensuring that sustainability commitments were embedded without affecting project timelines.

Committing Scale to Sustainability

Beyond individual certifications, what truly stands out is the scale of commitment. Across these four IGBC Gold Pre-Certified projects, a substantial built-up area (excluding parking) has been formally committed to IGBC sustainability standards at the pre-certification stage.

This reflects a portfolio-level approach to green development - where sustainability is embedded early through planning, documentation, and coordinated execution, rather than being treated as a project-specific or post-design initiative.

Collaboration That Made It Possible

Green buildings are a collective effort. A heartfelt acknowledgement goes to VKE, our IGBC consultants, for their structured guidance and seamless coordination during the review process. VKA Architects played a vital role in integrating sustainability principles into architectural design, while the Skyline team ensured precise MEP coordination aligned with green commitments.

We also appreciate the contributions of the Hydrogeology consultants and Environmental Clearance (EC) consultants, who ensured alignment between environmental approvals and IGBC requirements. Equally important was the dedication of the entire Jhamtani internal team - including site project managers, lead architects handling execution, and the marketing team, who ensured that green features were accurately implemented and effectively communicated through project brochures.

Why IGBC Pre-Certification Matters

From a liaisoning and planning perspective, IGBC Pre-Certification is a powerful tool. It locks sustainability intent early, reduces mid-stage design changes, and provides clarity for execution teams. Pre-Certification also builds confidence among authorities, consultants, and stakeholders that the project is progressing with clearly defined green commitments, paving the way for final certification.

Value Delivered to Customers

IGBC Gold Pre-Certified projects are designed to enable sustainable living and responsible building operation. While actual performance depends on occupant behavior and operational practices, customers benefit from improved indoor environmental quality, better planned services, future-ready infrastructure, and transparency in sustainability intent. This clarity strengthens trust and reinforces long-term value.

Contributing to Nature and Sustainable Cities

Consistent adoption of IGBC standards contributes to conserving natural resources, reducing environmental impact, and supporting sustainable urban growth. Each green project adds to a larger collective effort - helping cities grow responsibly while respecting environmental limits.

Closing Note

Achieving four consecutive IGBC Gold Pre-Certifications is not just a milestone - it is proof that disciplined coordination, early planning, and collaborative effort can make sustainability repeatable. From the lens of a liaisoning architect, this journey reinforces one belief: when coordination is strong, green development becomes a consistent outcome, not an exception.

CORE HIGHLIGHTS

Jhamtani Realty & VKa architecture:

Made of mutual respect & love, mixed with constant perseverance, a sprinkle of learnings, but topped with a big dollop of good, sensible Design

Synergies between Organisations in the real estate industry are rather unique. Whether Developer and Contractor, or Developer and Consultants... we grow together, and we learn together. Over projects spanning time and space, we learn to know and accept each other, and from therein springs values of trust and mutual respect. And like any relationship that is personal and valuable, it has its shares of disagreements and a few heartbreaks too.

My first interaction with Jhamtani Realty happened in early 2015, when Hrishikesh (Kulkarni, Director – VKa) and I met Anup Jhamtani for a project called Ace Augusta. For a premium standalone, high-rise tower at Hinjawadi, we never anticipated that Ace Augusta would be so challenging! While the design was quickly approved and drawings reasonably issued by our competent team, changes in rules and its interpretation by the authority ensured that we had to scratch through seven different revisions, using multiple different strategies. We learnt through failures of the impact of wind and rains in highrise structures. But through this, both Jhamtani (and I say here as a 'Company' because it is not just Anup or Meenakshi, it is made of a group of talented, hard working and enterprising individuals in planning & engineering).... So, both Jhamtani and VK:a architecture didn't bow down. Jhamtani built well, and VK:a accepted every challenge. We all stumbled at times, but we held each other up. What came up is a wonderful project indeed!

This quality of this relationship, further extended into other projects like Vision Ace, Ace Arcade, Ace Aurum II & III, and more recently in Ace Abode and some more new exciting projects that are all in the pipeline. We also worked on many design feasibilities together – at Borhadewadi, Mundhwa, Balewadi, Ravet and more. We missed a few opportunities to work with Anup & Team, but through the nature of both our organisations' strengths, we feel a natural gravitational pull towards each other. Something that brought Ace Atmosphere back to us...

Balewadi, Ravet and more. We missed a few opportunities to work with Anup & Team, but through the nature of both our organisations' strengths, we feel a natural gravitational pull towards each other. Something that brought Ace Atmosphere back to us...

On 40 years of Jhamtani Realty providing comfortable, meaningful and often exceptional buildings that dot PCMC area and now PMC, we are indeed, greatly privileged to work with them. As an organisation, their methodology of work culture, the aspirations of organisational growth, principles of strong ethics and excellence, an ability to listen & learn, and its very core... the belief in its people, has tied Jhamtani Realty and VK:a architecture together. We resonate with how they think, and our teams share great professional (and sometimes personal) camaraderie. They are eager to surpass their own expectations, and do projects that have their customers at heart.... And I would like to believe that we enable that in our own way.

Personally, I feel a sense of friendship with Anup and his beautiful family, and a great sense of comfort with the exceptional team they have purposefully developed. With Manoj Sir, Ashish, Amit, Dayal, Nilesh, Anupam, Hanumanta, Manish (to name a few... apologies to those I have missed), my own team of Akshay, Pallavi, Trupta, Prashant, Sangram, Pritam, Appa, Girish, Ketaki, Sapna and more... we have had many laughs, honest design discussions, and a few playful tiffs. And for that I am grateful. Mutually, our strength is in our People, our growth is in our Work Culture, and our roots are based on Good Design.

And to that, I give a big Cheers to the entire Jhamtani for completing 40 years! To dear Paramanand Uncle and Ma'am, to Anup and Meenakshi and everyone else! May your tribe always prosper and grow!

The First Hello That Transforms Interest into Intent

The First Impression of a Real Estate Company, Not the Least

In real estate, the journey of every homebuyer begins long before they step into the site or meet the sales team, it starts with the Pre-Sales department. Often underestimated, pre-sales professionals are, in fact, the face and voice of the company.

When speaking to a potential client, the first interaction sets the tone. A well-informed and courteous pre-sales executive can create curiosity, build trust, and make the client feel valued, even before they visit the project. This is where the brand's credibility begins.

Pre-sales is not just about calling leads, it's about understanding the client's needs, qualifying genuine prospects, and aligning their requirements with the right project. The way information is shared, questions are handled, and follow-ups are managed leaves a lasting impression on the buyer's mind.

A strong pre-sales team reflects professionalism, product knowledge, and customer empathy, all of which directly impact conversion rates. When the foundation of communication is strong, the sales closure becomes smoother.

In short, pre-sales isn't the least important part of the process; it's the beginning of every successful deal.

The first impression that pre-sales create can decide whether a customer continues the journey or walks away.

Through thoughtful engagement, transparency, and customer-first processes, Jhamtani continues to redefine presales excellence and elevate customer experiences at every touchpoint.

Jhamtani – The name is a promise.
